She has held appointments in the Institute of Geophysics and Planetary Physics (Acting Director: 1999-2000) and the Department of Earth and Space Sciences (Chair: 1984-1987) at UCLA where she served from 1967 to her retirement in 2009. She is currently also a Research Professor in the Department of Atmospheric, Oceanic, and Space Sciences at the University of Michigan (2010-).

Kivelson obtained her A.B. in 1950 and her A.M. and Ph.D. in 1952 and 1957, respectively, from Radcliffe College, Harvard University. She was awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship (1973-74), the Radcliffe Graduate Society Medal (1983), the Harvard University 350th Anniversary Alumni Medal (1986), several NASA Group Achievement Awards, the Alfvén medal of the European Geophysical Union, the Fleming medal of the American Geophysical Union and memberships in the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, the National Academy of Sciences (Councilor 2007-2010) and the American Philosophical Society. She is an elected Fellow of the American Geophysical Union, the American Physical Society, the International Academy of Astronautics, the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the Royal Astronomical Society (Great Britain). She has served on numerous advisory committees including the Space Studies Board of the National Research Council and on scientific Visiting Committees at Harvard, the University of Michigan, and various campuses of the University of California and the Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Kivelson's research interests are in the areas of solar terrestrial physics and planetary science. Her recent research has focused on Earth, Jupiter, Saturn and Jupiter's Galilean moons. She was the Principal Investigator for the Magnetometer on the Galileo Orbiter that acquired data in Jupiter's magnetosphere for eight years and is a Co-I on various other investigations including the FGM (magnetometer) of the NASA-ESA Cluster mission and NASA's Themis mission and is a member of the Cassini magnetometer team.

Kivelson has published more than 340 research papers and is co-editor of a widely used textbook on space physics. In addition to her frequent presentations at university seminars and professional conferences, she has discussed space research with K-12 students and other general audiences. She has been active in efforts to identify the barriers faced by women as students, faculty and practitioners of the physical sciences and to improve the environment in which they function.
